The seminar provides an introduction to the challenges of crisis governance in politics and public administration. Through the Problem Based Learning (PBL) approach, students will explore the theoretical foundations of crisis governance and study practical issues to develop problem-solving skills for addressing crises effectively. The aim of the seminar is for students to engage independently with the issues at hand and to work together to create new solutions.

Students will be required to work in groups on a regular basis to engage with the tasks and prepare presentations and reports according to the PBL approach.

 IMPORTANT: This seminar will be held entirely in English! **

This master seminar in English deals with Crisis Management Systems in European countries (France, Sweden, UK, Poland and Germany) from a political science point of view with special focus on the role of public administration. It is based on organizational theories on crisis governance and management as well as on the current debate on new core concepts for public administration with the key terms of resilience of public institutions, a new culture of managing risk and taking into account the discussion on the polycrisis nature of the current situation. During the seminar, the civil protection systems of several European countries will be discussed with their strengths and weaknesses. Case studies are focussing on crisis governance in the Covid-19 pandemic and in migration policy.

What is the course about?

This course deals with the impact of strategy on the performance of public sector organizations. A particular focus will be organizational capabilities as mediators between strategy and performance. We will look at theoretical/conceptual aspects as well as practical methods and examples. Focusing on several questions: What is strategy? Does strategy bring any difference in performance? How is it affected by capabilities of organizations? And how can it be applied differently in the public sector?

Voraussetzung

The course is recommended for students with previous exposure to public management (particularly the course on Foundations of Public Management).

Literatur

Further information and material will be provided via Moodle.

Leistungsnachweis

A successful completion of the course will require a substantial amount of reading, presentation and a regular participation (e.g. in discussions, presentation and learning diaries).

In addition to that, for passing the course in terms of a module examination, students are supposed to write an essay on an issue related to the content of the course.

Bemerkung

The number of participants is limited.

In this educational research project, we will explore jointly the specific characteristics of national digital governance systems. The focus of this research seminar is particularly on the governance of digital transformation at the local government level in European countries that are usually beyond our analytical scope. This may be due to their geographical location, size or perceived political relevance, such as in the case of some Eastern European countries or countries in the European periphery (think of Iceland, for example). We want to take a closer look at the political-administrative system of these countries and examine how, within this system, the local digital transformation is steered, e.g. through digitalisation strategies or partnerships.

Notwithstanding prior information, the seminar will take place to the above described dates and times.

The seminar covers both, fundamental and advanced statistical techniques for causal inference from observational data. It starts by replicating the counterfactual concept of causality and its links to regression coefficients. It then discusses the possibilities (and limitations) of estimating causal effects by means of covariate adjustment. Finally, the seminar introduces techniques to deal with unobserved (or unobservable) heterogeneity. More specifically the seminar covers the following statistical techniques: multiple regressions, exact matching, coarsened exact matching, fixed effects panel regression, instrumental variable regression, and regression discontinuity models. Thereby, the seminar aims at introducing the methods' conceptional ideas and assumptions.

Treating words as data has become a popular approach to analysing text documents in the social sciences. The main goal of this seminar is to introduce students to the possibilities and pitfalls of automated content analysis with R. Beginning with a brief overview of text-as-data methods, this seminar delves into specific text-mining techniques, including algorithms for supervised and unsupervised ideological scaling. The course will include theoretical sessions introducing and discussing the conceptual frameworks described in the reading material, as well as hands-on exercises applying the main preprocessing and text-mining methods.

The course offers a structured knowledge of the resurgence of radical populism in Europe. It looks at the reasons for this "populist explosion", as the American journalist John Judis (2016) put it, challengers' entrepreneurial strategies and established parties' strategic responses, and how this affects political spaces. Anchored in the spatial theory of party competition, this course combines the demand and supply sides of politics to provide students with a comprehensive framework for understanding and analysing the contemporary game of politics. Although the course is primarily based on theoretical knowledge, it will also cover the dynamics of party competition, methods for estimating party positions, and the dimensionality of political spaces. Theoretical concepts and methodological approaches will be discussed interactively with students and applied to Germany and other European countries.

This seminar should help students in acquiring an in-depth understanding of the contemporary functions and functioning of the European Union, building on both recent empirical research in the political sciences and on group work in the seminar.

The seminar contents are structured along three blocks. In the first block, we will look at the traditional explanations of European integration and political co-operation in the EU. We then together assess whether these classical explanations still hold when we think about the different crises the EU has lived through in the last two decades. The second block will then zoom in on the functions and functioning of the key institutions in EU legislative politics, most notably the European Council and the Council of Ministers, the European Parliament, as well as the European Commission. Students will learn about and discuss the internal decision-making logics of these institutions and their relative influence in the EU as a whole. The third block finally focusses on the interactions between European decision-making and national politics. We will especially investigate the public politicisation of EU affairs in the member states to then review empirical research studying how different EU institutions respond to and deal with such controversial public debates.

Throughout these three blocks, students will thus encounter the key questions in the current scientific and political debates about the EU and European integration and will train how to think and discuss about them on their own. Throughout the individual sessions, the seminar will provide many pointers to relevant literatures as well empirical data sources and research methods for students wishing to pursue specific questions further.

Voraussetzung

The seminar addresses Masters students in political science and related disciplines (e.g. international relations, comparative politics, public administration, or political sociology) who are interested in understanding and analyzing contemporary European Union politics. Prior exposure to or practical experience in EU politics is an asset but not a requirement to engage in this class. But prospective participants should be willing to:

- Engage with the substantive and methodological aspects of political science literature,
- Invest in active self-learning based on the various materials provided,
- Contribute their knowledge, views, and questions to our active learning in class.

Literatur

Specific literature – typically one or two recent studies on the topic of the session – will be provided in the syllabus provided at www.christian-rauh.eu/teaching around one week prior to the start of the semester.

If you want to acquaint yourselves with the topics and type of research covered in the seminar, I can recommend the following textbooks for good introductions:

- De Vries, C. E., Hobolt, S. B., Proksch, S.-O. and Slapin, J. B. (2021) Foundations of European Politics: A Comparative Approach, Oxford, United Kingdom: Oxford University Press.
- Hix, S. and Höyland, B. (2022) The Political System of the European Union, 4th Ed., London#; New York: Bloomsbury Academic.

Leistungsnachweis

Within the inverted classroom organisation of the seminar, the following active participation roles are available to you in individual sessions:

- Presenter : Prepare a ppt/pdf presentation (12-15 mins) on one published study on the topic of the seminar session. Your presentation summarizes the motivation, research design, and results of the study to then engage your fellow students in a short discussion about the implications or shortcomings of that research. Below I suggest suitable studies marked with (P) for each session, but if you have other ideas or if you want to present an own research design (e.g. for your term paper or a potential MA thesis project), I am happy to talk about this!
- Debater : Two sessions will be organized as group debates (one on politicization and one on democracy in the EU). To kick off the debates there will be two teams of up to three seminar participants each that argue for and against respective statements. As part of one of these teams, you will search for and collect arguments on the side you are defending during preparation to then exchange them with the opposing team during class. I will provide relevant scientific sources on this debate and I am also happy to talk to your team beforehand.
- Minute-taker : As a minute taker you will prepare an overview document of an individual in-class session that will be shared with your fellow students via Moodle (pdf, ~ 3-4 pages). During class you take notes and ask your fellow students if something was unclear, afterwards you summarize the main points and views discussed in class where you may also include links to materials or sources that were mentioned during the discussions.

Students wishing to collect a 'Teilnahmeschein' (=4 ECTS) for this seminar have to take up one of these roles at least once during seminar and should participate regularly. A respective booking tool will be offered via Moodle.

Students wishing to collect 6 ECTS will hand in a term paper after the seminar (deadline September 30, 2025). The length of the term paper is typically around 6.000 to 7.500 words, depending on the module under which you are enrolled in the seminar. Research designs are an acceptable format and I will make more detailed guidelines for the paper available via Moodle, my website, and in class.

Bemerkung

The seminar is organised the idea of an inverted or flipped classroom. Contrary to traditional teaching in class, I will offer the lecture and content delivery part of the seminar before our meetings. This will typically be one or two introductory texts for your own reading and a lecture video shared via Moodle roughly three days before each session. For you, this approach has two key advantages. First, it allows you to learn about the key contents of each session at your own speed. Second, it frees up in-class time for joint, active learning: together we will deepen the key contents of each session on the basis of your questions, group discussions and debates, as well as presentations of more advanced topics. To realize these advantages all participants should take both their own preparation phase as well as our joint in-class work seriously along the following seminar participation steps:

- 1) Start the preparation by reading the guiding questions provided for each session.
- 2) Read the obligatory introductory text(s) for the session and mark this task as completed on Moodle.
- 3) Watch the lecture video (~30 mins) offered for the session and mark this task as completed on Moodle.
- 4) Assess whether you have understood the key concepts listed for each session and how they help you in sketching answers to the guiding questions.
- 5) Note down your questions, discussion points, or research ideas into the shared document provided for each session on Moodle. This will be the first input for our group discussions in class. Any factual, political or methodological question as well as ideas for tackling the guiding questions empirically is welcome here!
- 6) Participate actively and regularly during the in-class discussions and activities and cooperate with your fellow students. We will frequently work with the "Think–Pair- Share" (TPS) method where you can make up your own mind, discuss in smaller groups, to then engage in the plenum. If you have to miss an individual session, please notify me briefly via email beforehand.
- 7) Take up one of the active participation roles specified for each individual seminar session. Students wishing to collect at least 4 ECTS for this seminar have to take up one of these roles at least once during seminar. A respective booking tool will be offered via Moodle.

Zielgruppe

The seminar addresses Masters students in political science and related disciplines (e.g. international relations, comparative politics, public administration, or political sociology) who are interested in understanding and analyzing contemporary European Union politics. Prior exposure to or practical experience in EU politics is an asset but not a requirement to engage in this class.

What is the course about?

This course deals with the impact of strategy on the performance of public sector organizations. A particular focus will be organizational capabilities as mediators between strategy and performance. We will look at theoretical/conceptual aspects as well as practical methods and examples. Focusing on several questions: What is strategy? Does strategy bring any difference in performance? How is it affected by capabilities of organizations? And how can it be applied differently in the public sector?

Voraussetzung

The course is recommended for students with previous exposure to public management (particularly the course on Foundations of Public Management).

Literatur

Further information and material will be provided via Moodle.

Leistungsnachweis

A successful completion of the course will require a substantial amount of reading, presentation and a regular participation (e.g. in discussions, presentation and learning diaries).

In addition to that, for passing the course in terms of a module examination, students are supposed to write an essay on an issue related to the content of the course.

In this educational research project, we will explore jointly the specific characteristics of national digital governance systems. The focus of this research seminar is particularly on the governance of digital transformation at the local government level in European countries that are usually beyond our analytical scope. This may be due to their geographical location, size or perceived political relevance, such as in the case of some Eastern European countries or countries in the European periphery (think of Iceland, for example). We want to take a closer look at the political-administrative system of these countries and examine how, within this system, the local digital transformation is steered, e.g. through digitalisation strategies or partnerships.

Notwithstanding prior information, the seminar will take place to the above described dates and times.

According to the Discipline-Specific Regulations for MANIA, this module „conveys knowledge about the legal factors affecting administrative work in the national and supranational contexts. Students will learn the basic structures of German administrative law, but also focus their attention on the Europeanisation of administrative law“.

In this sense, this block seminar includes 11 topics dealing with the system and hierarchy of sources of administrative law, the rule of law principles for administrative procedures and decisions, forms of administrative action under public law and private law, the administrative structure and organisation in Germany and the EU and the administrative implementation of EU law, the legal status and administrative tasks of local authorities in a European comparison and the impact of EU law in different fields such as environmental law, data protection, and the regulation of network industries. Finally, the German system of judicial proceedings before administrative courts (again including EU impact) and the state liability of the EU and of member states for violation of EU law will be examined.

The module exam comprises an oral presentation of approx. 30 min. and an associated term paper of 15-20 pages. As a supplementary exam work, a research exposé of approx. 5 pages followed by a feedback reflects the mid-term processing status.

Pre-existing legal knowledge in the field of constitutional, administrative, and EU law is not required but beneficial. In addition, participants shall take into account that adequate German language skills facilitate access to the predominant German literature.

The number of participants is limited to 11. Any necessary selection procedure will be carried out according to § 9b BAMA-O.

The seminar provides an introduction to the challenges of crisis governance in politics and public administration. Through the Problem Based Learning (PBL) approach, students will explore the theoretical foundations of crisis governance and study practical issues to develop problem-solving skills for addressing crises effectively. The aim of the seminar is for students to engage independently with the issues at hand and to work together to create new solutions.

Students will be required to work in groups on a regular basis to engage with the tasks and prepare presentations and reports according to the PBL approach.

This master seminar in English deals with den Crisis Management Systems in European countries (France, Sweden, UK, Poland and Germany) from a political science point of view with special focus on the role of public administration. Its based on organizational theories on crisis governance and management as well as on the current debate on new core concepts for public administration with the key terms of resilience of public institutions, a new culture of managing risk and taking into account the discussion on the polycrisis nature of the current situation. During the seminar, the civil protection systems of several European countries will be discussed with their strengths and weaknesses. Case studies are focussing on crisis governance in the Covid-19 pandemic and in migration policy.

Only 150 years ago, people were able to get a job in the labor market, only asking for work. For most of the people work was a question of labor demand. If a worker was needed, the pure workforce was sufficient to carry out the activity. Collected experience, personal reference letter or family references were helpful and increased the likelihood of getting a job. But, basically no formal training or conformed certificate was necessary to enter the workforce. This has changed drastically in the course of educational expansion: Today, young people must have passed different qualification levels from school level to vocational training or tertiary level and it is required to show different levels of qualification by official certificates. Hence, nowadays credentials have become the gatekeeper to getting a job. The modern 'Schooled Society' (Baker 2014) is based on the principle that credentials are necessary to enter qualified positions, wherefore a continuously increasing number of occupations require formal education.

Over the last 150 years, the educational level of the population increased in almost all countries. Never before, were this many people so highly educated, and never before, families spend so much money to get their children educated. David Baker (2014) called this development "the education revolution". Over 4 family generations only, education has become a universal feature for all children.

However, up to now social inequality in educational attainment remains in all societies. Either the access to school and to different school levels or the educational outcomes measured by grades, competencies or credentials follow country specific tracks of social inequality. But why can this be the case when the upgrading, understood as the "big picture" of the educational development in the last 150 years is just an ongoing process?

In this seminar, we explore the worldwide development of the upgrading of the population. We ask, what kind of consequences arise out of this development for families and the education of their children.

Trans*, transgender, transsexual monster, non-binary, enby, tranimal or starfish: The trans body is a contested territory, making the seams and sutures of nature/culture dualism very palpable and breaking the gears of the gender factory. In this seminar we will experience the interdependencies of trans*: From its troubled relations with feminism, intersex siblings, unspoken racism and the question of prison abolishment, its struggle between liberal tolerance and radical rage, decolonial interventions into trans*, to its role in new materialist attempts at de-centering the human.

We will intra-act with (English) seminar literature as well as some video performances, but mostly with each other – in English and/or German. Reading (the texts) is fundamental, as is the active co-creation of the seminar through writing short reflection diaries and said intra-action. Lerninhalte

The aim of this course is to provide participants with a deeper understanding of microeconometric estimation techniques. We will use the topic "Policy Evaluation" to illustrate and discuss several methods under various types of assumptions.

Topics:

- Causality and the Potential Outcome Framework
- Experiments
- Unconfoundedness
- Matching
- Difference-in-Differences
- Instrumental Variables
- Regression-Discontinuity Design

The lecture will be complemented by a practical computer session "Public Policy Evaluation (2)" where the estimators will be implemented using STATA.

According to the Discipline-Specific Regulations for MANIA, this module „conveys knowledge about the legal factors affecting administrative work in the national and supranational contexts. Students will learn the basic structures of German administrative law, but also focus their attention on the Europeanisation of administrative law".

In this sense, this block seminar includes 11 topics dealing with the system and hierarchy of sources of administrative law, the rule of law principles for administrative procedures and decisions, forms of administrative action under public law and private law, the administrative structure and organisation in Germany and the EU and the administrative implementation of EU law, the legal status and administrative tasks of local authorities in a European comparison and the impact of EU law in different fields such as environmental law, data protection, and the regulation of network industries. Finally, the German system of judicial proceedings before administrative courts (again including EU impact) and the state liability of the EU and of member states for violation of EU law will be examined.

The module exam comprises an oral presentation of approx. 30 min. and an associated term paper of 15-20 pages. As a supplementary exam work, a research exposé of approx. 5 pages followed by a feedback reflects the mid-term processing status.

Pre-existing legal knowledge in the field of constitutional, administrative, and EU law is not required but beneficial. In addition, participants shall take into account that adequate German language skills facilitate access to the predominant German literature.

The number of participants is limited to 11. Any necessary selection procedure will be carried out according to § 9b BAMA-O.

What is the course about?

This course deals with the impact of strategy on the performance of public sector organizations. A particular focus will be organizational capabilities as mediators between strategy and performance. We will look at theoretical/conceptual aspects as well as practical methods and examples. Focusing on several questions: What is strategy? Does strategy bring any difference in performance? How is it affected by capabilities of organizations? And how can it be applied differently in the public sector?

Voraussetzung

The course is recommended for students with previous exposure to public management (particularly the course on Foundations of Public Management).

Literatur

Further information and material will be provided via Moodle.

Leistungsnachweis

A successful completion of the course will require a substantial amount of reading, presentation and a regular participation (e.g. in discussions, presentation and learning diaries).

In addition to that, for passing the course in terms of a module examination, students are supposed to write an essay on an issue related to the content of the course.

Bemerkung

The number of participants is limited.

Only 150 years ago, people were able to get a job in the labor market, only asking for work. For most of the people work was a question of labor demand. If a worker was needed, the pure workforce was sufficient to carry out the activity. Collected experience, personal reference letter or family references were helpful and increased the likelihood of getting a job. But, basically no formal training or conformed certificate was necessary to enter the workforce. This has changed drastically in the course of educational expansion: Today, young people must have passed different qualification levels from school level to vocational training or tertiary level and it is required to show different levels of qualification by official certificates. Hence, nowadays credentials have become the gatekeeper to getting a job. The modern 'Schooled Society' (Baker 2014) is based on the principle that credentials are necessary to enter qualified positions, wherefore a continuously increasing number of occupations require formal education.

Over the last 150 years, the educational level of the population increased in almost all countries. Never before, were this many people so highly educated, and never before, families spend so much money to get their children educated. David Baker (2014) called this development "the education revolution". Over 4 family generations only, education has become a universal feature for all children.

However, up to now social inequality in educational attainment remains in all societies. Either the access to school and to different school levels or the educational outcomes measured by grades, competencies or credentials follow country specific tracks of social inequality. But why can this be the case when the upgrading, understood as the "big picture" of the educational development in the last 150 years is just an ongoing process?

In this seminar, we explore the worldwide development of the upgrading of the population. We ask, what kind of consequences arise out of this development for families and the education of their children.

Trans*, transgender, transsexual monster, non-binary, enby, tranimal or starfish: The trans body is a contested territory, making the seams and sutures of nature/culture dualism very palpable and breaking the gears of the gender factory. In this seminar we will experience the interdependencies of trans*: From its troubled relations with feminism, intersex siblings, unspoken racism and the question of prison abolishment, its struggle between liberal tolerance and radical rage, decolonial interventions into trans*, to its role in new materialist attempts at de-centering the human.

We will intra-act with (English) seminar literature as well as some video performances, but mostly with each other – in English and/or German. Reading (the texts) is fundamental, as is the active co-creation of the seminar through writing short reflection diaries and said intra-action. But most important are the willingness to fail, admit, (un)learn, and act in solidarity with each other.

Term Paper + active participation and 1-2 presentations in the practical sessions.

Registration for the portfolio examination.

Students on the Economics degree program are already registered for the portfolio examination when they register for the advanced exercise. Deregistration is only possible during the registration period.

Students on the EPQM degree program must register for the portfolio examination separately in PULS.

Lerninhalte

This course is a complement to the lecture "Policy Evaluation I: Methods" and will provide students with the skills and insight necessary for conducting their own empirical analysis. Estimation and hypotheses testing procedures will be illustrated using both simulated and real data application using STATA.

Leistungsnachweis

Written exam (90 minutes) + 1-2 short presentations.

Students on the Economic degree program are already registered for the exam when they register for the lecture.

Deregistration is only possible during the registration period.

Students on the EPQM degree program must register for the exam separately in PULS (no later than 8 days before the exam date).

Lerninhalte

The aim of this course is to provide participants with a deeper understanding of microeconometric estimation techniques. We will use the topic "Policy Evaluation" to illustrate and discuss several methods under various types of assumptions.

Topics:

- Causality and the Potential Outcome Framework
- Experiments
- Unconfoundedness
- Matching
- Difference-in-Differences
- Instrumental Variables
- Regression-Discontinuity Design

The lecture will be complemented by a practical computer session "Public Policy Evaluation (2)" where the estimators will be implemented using STATA.

Dieses Kolloquium richtet sich primär an BA- und MA-Studierende, die ihre Abschlussarbeit im Bereich der vergleichenden Politikwissenschaft schreiben möchten. Sie werden hier an verschiedene Möglichkeiten und Arbeitstechniken zur Entwicklung einer eigenen Fragestellung herangeführt. Die Teilnehmenden haben darüber hinaus die Gelegenheit, ihre vorläufigen Überlegungen zu möglicher Fragestellung, Gliederung und Datenbasis vorzustellen und zu diskutieren.

Glossar

Die folgenden Begriffserklärungen zu Prüfungsleistung, Prüfungsnebenleistung und Studienleistung gelten im Bezug auf Lehrveranstaltungen für alle Ordnungen, die seit dem WiSe 2013/14 in Kranft getreten sind.

Prüfungsleistung

Prüfungsleistungen sind benotete Leistungen innerhalb eines Moduls. Aus der Benotung der Prüfungsleistung(en) bildet sich die Modulnote, die in die Gesamtnote des Studiengangs eingeht. Handelt es sich um eine unbenotete Prüfungsleistung, so muss dieses ausdrücklich („unbenotet“) in der Modulbeschreibung der fachspezifischen Ordnung geregelt sein. Weitere Informationen, auch zu den Anmeldemöglichkeiten von Prüfungsleistungen, finden Sie unter anderem in der Kommentierung der BaMa-O

Prüfungsnebenleistung

Prüfungsnebenleistungen sind für den Abschluss eines Moduls relevante Leistungen, die – soweit sie vorgesehen sind – in der Modulbeschreibung der fachspezifischen Ordnung beschrieben sind. Prüfungsnebenleistungen sind immer unbenotet und werden lediglich mit "bestanden" bzw. "nicht bestanden" bewertet. Die Modulbeschreibung regelt, ob die Prüfungsnebenleistung eine Teilnahmevoraussetzung für eine Modulprüfung oder eine Abschlussvoraussetzung für ein ganzes Modul ist. Als Teilnahmevoraussetzung für eine Modulprüfung muss die Prüfungsnebenleistung erfolgreich vor der Anmeldung bzw. Teilnahme an der Modulprüfung erbracht worden sein. Auch für Erbringung einer Prüfungsnebenleistungen wird eine Anmeldung vorausgesetzt. Diese fällt immer mit der Belegung der Lehrveranstaltung zusammen, da Prüfungsnebenleistung im Rahmen einer Lehrveranstaltungen absolviert werden. Sieht also Ihre fachspezifische Ordnung Prüfungsnebenleistungen bei Lehrveranstaltungen vor, sind diese Lehrveranstaltungen zwingend zu belegen, um die Prüfungsnebenleistung absolvieren zu können.

Studienleistung

Als Studienleistung werden Leistungen bezeichnet, die weder Prüfungsleistungen noch Prüfungsnebenleistungen sind.
