John Berger (1926-2017) was one of the most innovative and influential but also one of the most eccentric and controversial figures on the British literary and cultural scene of the second half of the 20th century and beyond. All at once an experimental novelist, a feminist art critic, a radical essayist, a documentary film maker, an elegiac poet, a strident political commentator and activist, a late modernist painter and non-doctrinaire Marxist "cultural visionary" (Ali Smith), Berger has left behind a body of work that defies easy categorisation. #### Kommentar

This seminar covers novels and films that actively engage with archives and circulate hidden feminist and queer knowledge. The texts we will discuss refer to a variety of archival sources, such as feminist and queer grassroots archives, the archive of the ACT UP movement that emerged during the AIDS crisis, archival materials of the riot grrrl movement of the 1990s, and even fictional archives of histories that could have happened. We will ask if novels and films have the potential of transferring "storage memory" to "functional memory" (Assmann) and discuss different theoretical approaches to archives. Saidiya Hartman's influential framework of critical fabulation is a creative way of addressing and working with a past that is inadequately accessible – be it because of gaps in the archive, or because the available historical sources are hostile and violent towards its subjects. Next to highlighting the potentials of such creative approaches to writing history, we will also look at their potential pitfalls. Among the texts we will discuss are Justin Torres's novel Blackouts (2023), Saidiya Hartman's Wayward Lives, Beautiful Experiments (2019), Jennifer Mathieu's young adult novel Moxie (2017) and its filmic adaptation, Cheryl Dunye's film The Watermelon Woman (1997), Jim Hubbard's documentary United in Anger: A History of ACT UP (2012), the TV-series Pose (2018-2021), Irene Lusztig's documentary Yours in Sisterhood (2018), as well as Zoe Beloff's art project The Coney Island Amateur Psychoanalytic Society and Its Circle (2009).

Literature:

Justin Torres: Blackouts (2023)

Saidiya Hartman: Wayward Lives, Beautiful Experiments (2019)

Jennifer Mathieu: Moxie (2017)

All other texts and films will be made available in the first session.

Kommentar

Public conversations about topics such as bathrooms and sports suggest that cultural ideas about disability, gender, and sexuality are related. Examining approaches from queer theory, gender studies, and disability studies, such as Alison Kafer's Feminist, Queer, Crip, we will discuss how the intersections of these categories have been framed theoretically and pay attention to poststructuralist and phenomenological approaches to think about bodies. We will, for example, ask how the political strategy of coming out as gay or lesbian has been theorized in relation to coming out as a person with an invisible disability, examine the parallels and differences of the terms "sex" and "gender" as they are theorized within gender studies and the terms "impairment" and "disability" as they are used within disability studies, and we will compare the concepts of "compulsory heterosexuality" (Adrienne Rich) and "compulsory able-bodiedness" (Robert McRuer). Many of these theoretical ideas are also discussed in memoirs of writers with disabilities; we will therefore read excerpts from a variety of what G. Thomas Couser calls "new disability memoirs," for example by Chloé Cooper Jones, Kenny Fries, Terry Galloway, Eli Clare, Robert F. Murphy, and Stephen Kuusisto.

Kommentar

Our course approaches the museum from a range of critical perspectives, including the representational role of museums in nation-building, their relationship to memory and commemoration, and their social roles and responsibilities. We will also consider recent contests over the rights to collections and the pedagogical representation of 'other' cultures. Students will engage with readings from the fields of museology, cultural studies, memory studies and postcolonial studies and combine these with close examination of current exhibitions as case studies.

1	B	N.N.	10:00 - 16:00	Block	1.19.1.16	10.06.2025	Prof. Dr. Katrina Schlunke, Prof. Dr. Anja Schwarz

Kommentar

This course is taught by our Potsdam Postcolonial Guest Professor Dr. Katrina Schlunke (University of Tasmania / University of Sydney). It will introduce students to the ways in which ideas of 'nature' and 'history' have shaped how we have understood the more-than-human world and the museums that display it. Coming together as 'natural history' a way of reading the world has emerged which often silences colonial histories and ongoing connections to Indigenous Country while privileging only some strands of the European development of natural history. In a period of time marked by mass extinctions and climate change, understanding the histories and organising discourses that shape the more-than-human (particularly animal) world, is a valuable critical tool.

Our path through the subject will include case studies of displayed more-than-human beings, histories of natural history and stories of alternate 'natures' as they appear in literature, museum displays and art. In-class activities will include short written exercises, fieldwork and group work.

The block seminar will take place from 10 to 13 June, from 9.00 to 16.30. Please make sure you attend the two compulsory preparatory sessions on 16 April and 14 May at 09:00 (via Zoom).

This seminar covers novels and films that actively engage with archives and circulate hidden feminist and queer knowledge. We will ask if novels and films have the potential of transferring "storage memory" to "functional memory" (Assmann) and discuss different theoretical approaches to archives. Saidiya Hartman's influential framework of critical fabulation is a creative way of addressing and working with a past that is inadequately accessible – be it because of gaps in the archive, or because the available historical sources are hostile and violent towards its subjects. Next to highlighting the potentials of such creative approaches to writing history, we will also look at their potential pitfalls. Among the texts we will discuss are Justin Torres's novel Blackouts (2023), Saidiya Hartman's Wayward Lives, Beautiful Experiments (2019), Jennifer Mathieu's young adult novel Moxie (2017) and its filmic adaptation, Cheryl Dunye's film The Watermelon Woman (1997), Jim Hubbard's documentary United in Anger: A History of ACT UP (2012), the TV-series Pose (2018-2021), Irene Lusztig's documentary Yours in Sisterhood (2018), as well as Zoe Beloff's art project The Coney Island Amateur Psychoanalytic Society and Its Circle (2009).

Literature:

Justin Torres: Blackouts (2023)

Saidiya Hartman: Wayward Lives, Beautiful Experiments (2019)

Jennifer Mathieu: Moxie (2017)

All other texts and films will be made available in the first session.

Kommentar

Public conversations about topics such as bathrooms and sports suggest that cultural ideas about disability, gender, and sexuality are related. Examining approaches from queer theory, gender studies, and disability studies, such as Alison Kafer's Feminist, Queer, Crip, we will discuss how the intersections of these categories have been framed theoretically and pay attention to poststructuralist and phenomenological approaches to think about bodies. We will, for example, ask how the political strategy of coming out as gay or lesbian has been theorized in relation to coming out as a person with an invisible disability, examine the parallels and differences of the terms "sex" and "gender" as they are theorized within gender studies and the terms "impairment" and "disability" as they are used within disability studies, and we will compare the concepts of "compulsory heterosexuality" (Adrienne Rich) and "compulsory able-bodiedness" (Robert McRuer). Many of these theoretical ideas are also discussed in memoirs of writers with disabilities; we will therefore read excerpts from a variety of what G. Thomas Couser calls "new disability memoirs," for example by Chloé Cooper Jones, Kenny Fries, Terry Galloway, Eli Clare, Robert F. Murphy, and Stephen Kuusisto.

Our course approaches the museum from a range of critical perspectives, including the representational role of museums in nation-building, their relationship to memory and commemoration, and their social roles and responsibilities. We will also consider recent contests over the rights to collections and the pedagogical representation of 'other' cultures. Students will engage with readings from the fields of museology, cultural studies, memory studies and postcolonial studies and combine these with close examination of current exhibitions as case studies.

This course is taught by our Potsdam Postcolonial Guest Professor Dr. Katrina Schlunke (University of Tasmania / University of Sydney). It will introduce students to the ways in which ideas of 'nature' and 'history' have shaped how we have understood the more-than-human world and the museums that display it. Coming together as 'natural history' a way of reading the world has emerged which often silences colonial histories and ongoing connections to Indigenous Country while privileging only some strands of the European development of natural history. In a period of time marked by mass extinctions and climate change, understanding the histories and organising discourses that shape the more-than-human (particularly animal) world, is a valuable critical tool.

Our path through the subject will include case studies of displayed more-than-human beings, histories of natural history and stories of alternate 'natures' as they appear in literature, museum displays and art. In-class activities will include short written exercises, fieldwork and group work.

1	S	Mi	12:00 - 14:00	wöch.	1.19.1.16	09.04.2025	Prof. Dr. Dirk Wiemann

Kommentar

John Berger (1926-2017) was one of the most innovative and influential but also one of the most eccentric and controversial figures on the British literary and cultural scene of the second half of the 20th century and beyond. All at once an experimental novelist, a feminist art critic, a radical essayist, a documentary film maker, an elegiac poet, a strident political commentator and activist, a late modernist painter and non-doctrinaire Marxist "cultural visionary" (Ali Smith), Berger has left behind a body of work that defies easy categorisation. In our seminar we will read and discuss some of Berger's most important texts across a range of literary and intermedial formats. Our corpus will include Berger's arguably most ambitious novel, G: A Novel (1972); extensive extracts from the story/poetry/essay collection Pig Earth (1982); a photo essay (A Seventh Man [1974]), and selected chapters from a TV documentary script (Ways of Seeing [1972]).

Dirk Wiemann will host a three-days international conference on "John Berger and the Poetics and Politics of Collaboration" from June 11 to 13 (that is, during the Whitsun reading week). Participants of this course are expected to contribute to this event by preparing posters to be presented at the conference. Details will be discussed in the course of the first in-class meeting.

This class has a considerable workload of reading assignments. Students are expected to read all course texts for the respective sessions.

This seminar covers novels and films that actively engage with archives and circulate hidden feminist and queer knowledge. The texts we will discuss refer to a variety of archival sources, such as feminist and queer grassroots archives, the archive of the ACT UP movement that emerged during the AIDS crisis, archival materials of the riot grrrl movement of the 1990s, and even fictional archives of histories that could have happened. We will ask if novels and films have the potential of transferring "storage memory" to "functional memory" (Assmann) and discuss different theoretical approaches to archives. Saidiya Hartman's influential framework of critical fabulation is a creative way of addressing and working with a past that is inadequately accessible – be it because of gaps in the archive, or because the available historical sources are hostile and violent towards its subjects. Next to highlighting the potentials of such creative approaches to writing history, we will also look at their potential pitfalls. Among the texts we will discuss are Justin Torres's novel Blackouts (2023), Saidiya Hartman's Wayward Lives, Beautiful Experiments (2019), Jennifer Mathieu's young adult novel Moxie (2017) and its filmic adaptation, Cheryl Dunye's film The Watermelon Woman (1997), Jim Hubbard's documentary United in Anger: A History of ACT UP (2012), the TV-series Pose (2018-2021), Irene Lusztig's documentary Yours in Sisterhood (2018), as well as Zoe Beloff's art project The Coney Island Amateur Psychoanalytic Society and Its Circle (2009).

The course is designed to strengthen your academic writing in English. To this end we will deal with the components of essay writing: the design of the introductory, main body, and concluding paragraphs as well as the conventions of MLA 9. Naturally we hope the course will also deepen your English. At advanced levels, language can only be deepened by using it to do challenging tasks - and few tasks are more challenging than writing good argument.

The number of participants in this course is limited to 20 students.

1	KL	Do	14:00 - 16:00	wöch.	1.09.1.14	10.04.2025	Dr. Anke Bartels

Kommentar

The research colloquium has a twofold purpose. We will first discuss three approaches to literary and cultural studies: Marxism, Feminism and Queer Studies. Do not choose this colloquium if you have taken one with this focus before. In the second half of the semester, you will also get the opportunity to introduce your ideas for a Master's thesis if you have taken this colloquium as your third one.

Literatur

Course material will be provided on Moodle.

Fakultative Lehrveranstaltungen

Glossar

Die folgenden Begriffserklärungen zu Prüfungsleistung, Prüfungsnebenleistung und Studienleistung gelten im Bezug auf Lehrveranstaltungen für alle Ordnungen, die seit dem WiSe 2013/14 in Kranft getreten sind.

Prüfungsleistung

Prüfungsleistungen sind benotete Leistungen innerhalb eines Moduls. Aus der Benotung der Prüfungsleistung(en) bildet sich die Modulnote, die in die Gesamtnote des Studiengangs eingeht. Handelt es sich um eine unbenotete Prüfungsleistung, so muss dieses ausdrücklich („unbenotet“) in der Modulbeschreibung der fachspezifischen Ordnung geregelt sein. Weitere Informationen, auch zu den Anmeldemöglichkeiten von Prüfungsleistungen, finden Sie unter anderem in der Kommentierung der BaMa-O

Prüfungsnebenleistung

Prüfungsnebenleistungen sind für den Abschluss eines Moduls relevante Leistungen, die – soweit sie vorgesehen sind – in der Modulbeschreibung der fachspezifischen Ordnung beschrieben sind. Prüfungsnebenleistungen sind immer unbenotet und werden lediglich mit "bestanden" bzw. "nicht bestanden" bewertet. Die Modulbeschreibung regelt, ob die Prüfungsnebenleistung eine Teilnahmevoraussetzung für eine Modulprüfung oder eine Abschlussvoraussetzung für ein ganzes Modul ist. Als Teilnahmevoraussetzung für eine Modulprüfung muss die Prüfungsnebenleistung erfolgreich vor der Anmeldung bzw. Teilnahme an der Modulprüfung erbracht worden sein. Auch für Erbringung einer Prüfungsnebenleistungen wird eine Anmeldung vorausgesetzt. Diese fällt immer mit der Belegung der Lehrveranstaltung zusammen, da Prüfungsnebenleistung im Rahmen einer Lehrveranstaltungen absolviert werden. Sieht also Ihre fachspezifische Ordnung Prüfungsnebenleistungen bei Lehrveranstaltungen vor, sind diese Lehrveranstaltungen zwingend zu belegen, um die Prüfungsnebenleistung absolvieren zu können.

Studienleistung

Als Studienleistung werden Leistungen bezeichnet, die weder Prüfungsleistungen noch Prüfungsnebenleistungen sind.
